3-Way Smash Dooms Minsk

MOSCOW, June 28 (AP)—Supported by one of the greatest air attacks ever hurled against the Germans on the Russian front, the Red Army closed in from three directions today on Minsk, capital of White Russia.

Duce's Thefts Bared

By MICHAEL CHINIGO

ROME, June 28 (INS)—Benito Mussolini, who rose to head of Fascist Italy as the righteous champion of the poor man, was unmasked today as a thief.

Authenticated documents uncovered in Rome showed Il Duce stole at least $4,500,000 from railwaymen's co-operative food stores before his fall. The papers also revealed that an uncontrolled special government fund permitted Mussolini to take 1,000,000 lire daily for the past 22 years.

Further evidence is being sought to demolish the myth that the Duce is an honest and poor man.

Monty's Tanks Rip Nazi Lines

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, June 28 (AP)—British tank columns burst two miles through the German Odon river line and engaged the enemy in the greatest armored battle of the liberation campaign four miles southwest of Caen today.

The clash blazing now in open country may decide the fate of a large part of the German 15th and 21st armies. The enemy had grouped four armored divisions around Caen, its eastern Normandy stronghold 120 miles from Paris.

Carving down southwest of Caen in an outflanking drive, Gen. Montgomery's steel fist tore a breach six miles wide in Nazi defenses, cut the peninsular base road from Caen, poured over the Odon river, and battered two miles deeper to a point northeast of Esquay.

This deep penetration sliced the road from Caen to Ecoule and threatened the remaining German-held highways feeding into Caen from the south and southeast.

British armor can move swiftly across the open, rolling plains below Caen, and the Germans must block this thrust or face the threat of having large forces encircled. Swift, stabbing armored drives are an old story to Montgomery's desert veterans, and one of Britain's most famous tank generals is directing the operations.

VIOLENT FIGHTING

Violent fighting also broke out a few miles north of Caen, with British troops pinning down German defense forces while tanks swept in from behind.

Allied planes hovered over the tank battle and lashed at Nazi reserves. Twenty-five German tanks were knocked out in Tuesday's fighting, and today's battle was on a much larger scale. Planes shot up 27 troop-carrying vehicles rushing about 800 German reinforcements to a weak spot, destroying 12 and damaging the others.

British infantrymen alone have advanced six miles since Montgomery began his whiplash offensive Monday. The punch went Tourville along the cross-peninsular road from Caen, then thrust on northeast of Esquay, about six miles southwest of Caen and midway between the Odon and Orne rivers.

HOLD CORRIDOR

"The operation is very successful and we hold a very strong corridor across the Odon," a staff officer in the field told Associated Press War Correspondent Roger Greene.

(Vichy radio declared Montgomery was using 100,000 troops.)

Associated Press, June 28

Dispatches from the front said probably never before had Stormoviks (dive-bombers) been thrown in with such strength and effectiveness against Nazi armored forces. Hour after hour they were reported searching out German tanks, plastering them in mass with their flying artillery and blasting the way for four armies converging in a great semicircle on Warsaw, gateway city into Germany.

The northernmost of the three spearheads aimed at Minsk was composed of Gen. Bagramian's First Baltic Army and 35-year-old Gen. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian Army.

In the van of this group were the Stormoviks, fast Yak fighter planes and medium bombers of Lt. Gen. Papiyev, Bagramian's 37-year-old air commander, and Col. Gen. Timofey Kravukhin, Cherniakhovsky's youthful aviation chief.

Cherniakhovsky, youngest army general in Russia, turned west toward Minsk after capturing Orsha and drove steadily forward. Two big obstacles were in his path—the Berezina river and the City of Borisov.

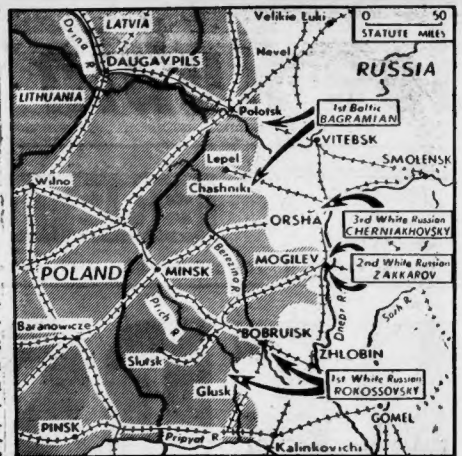

Field dispatches said Cherniakhovsky's advance units were less than 50 miles from Minsk and 26 miles east of Borisov. Other units under his command were reported driving rapidly through sparsely settled lake country to the forest area farther north where they were threatening to outflank Borisov from the northwest in conjunction with Bagramian's troops.

The third thrust to Minsk came from Gen. Rokossovsky's first White Russian Army, driving up from the southeast over the Minsk-Gomel highway and railway.

(The German radio said the German fortress at Orsha had succeeded in breaking through a strong Soviet encirclement to the west and is fighting its way toward Nazi lines, the broadcast added. The Germans admitted the Russians had gained ground in the Bobruisk and Mogilev areas, but said the Red Army was unable to smash those Nazi defense bases.)

Strong air support was thrown into the battle for Mogilev, where Gen. Zakharov's second White Russian Army battled the Nazis in the city's streets.

Between Mogilev and Orsha and Orsha and Minsk, the Russians have seized numerous trains packed with tanks, guns, ammunition and other stores.

RUSSIA—Aiming at the prize city of Minsk, Red Army troops today were fighting 46 miles west of Orsha and in the outskirts of Bobruisk, where Moscow reports five German divisions are encircled. Other Soviet forces captured Chashniki, planked into Mogilev and swept through Glusk. Boxes identify Army units and commanding generals.

Vichy Minister Assassinated

LONDON, June 28 (AP)—Philippe Henriot, Vichy minister of information and propaganda, was assassinated last night in Paris by 15 or 20 uniformed men who forced their way into his bedroom.

Apparently a victim of French patriots, Henriot was the most important collaborator yet to fall. The German agency Transocean said Henriot had reached Paris yesterday in company with Vichy Chief of State Laval.

The Berlin broadcasts failed to mention whether any of the assassins had been captured—a strong indication that they got away.

Two weeks ago Henriot was reported visiting Germany where he was said to have conferred with Dr. Goebbels and Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

DNB reported Berlin comment that Henriot "died for the battle of Europe" and blamed England for inciting "French terrorists to this action."

5th Captures San Vincenzo

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ROME, June 28 (AP)—San Vincenzo, only 32 miles below Livorno, was wrested from the Germans after a house-to-house battle that lasted several hours last night, and today the Fifth Army was reported slugging its way steadily forward.

San Vincenzo had been converted into a fortress by the Nazis, who had evacuated all civilians, then erected barricades and wire entanglements in front of the defenses.

Further inland an American armored force continued to roll back stubborn enemy resistance and occupied the villages of Chiusdino and Travale.

Supported by Italian Partisans, an American infantry force bypassed, then surrounded and captured the town of Sasseta, near San Vincenzo, despite its defense by elements of the German 17th SS division, identified in that sector for the first time.

U. S. Bombers Lash Guam, Rota Isles

By Associated Press

American planes have again rained Jap-held Guam and Rota islands south of invaded Saipan, Tokyo radio said today.

The unconfirmed report said 60 to 100 American aircraft struck at Guam and that 60 hit Rota to the north Tuesday. These were the third raids reported on the islands in four days, suggesting the American Navy was clearing the way for further expansion of its holdings in the Marianas group, 1500 miles from Japan.

On Saipan, U. S. Marines and infantrymen at last report were meeting stiffer opposition from Jap garrisons dug in along a mountainous, cave-lined front roughly halving the island. But the last report covered the situation as of two days ago, and Adm. Nimitz's headquarters has been silent since Monday.

Coupled with the reported Guam-Rota raids was an air blow at Yap from Gen. MacArthur's Southwest Pacific theater.

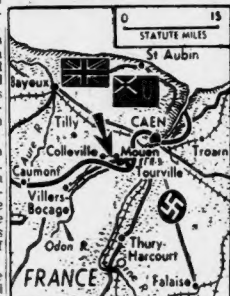

Yap, 250 miles northeast of Palau in the Carolines, was slugged with 35 tons of bombs, presumably to insure that Jap air forces there kept from interfering with the Saipan operations 700 miles north.

MacArthur's airmen bombed Palau and Woleai, wrecked a Jap freighter off Boeroe island west of New Guinea, damaged three vessels in the East Indies, and attacked Manokwari, Noemfoor, Wewak and Rabaul.

The Japs retaliated with a fenton raid on Biak island's Mokmer airdrome, inflicting minor casualties.

In Chungking, the Chinese high command indicated Jap forces have surrounded Hengyang in Hunan Province.

In Burma, Myitkyna was under heavy attack by Gen. Stilwell's troops.

and two armored divisions in this all-out assault. The German high command acknowledged a penetration in one area in this sector, but said other blows were thwarted.)

Americans in Cherbourg captured a second German general, the deputy commander of Cherbourg, Maj. Gen. Robert Stettler, yesterday when they stormed the arsenal in the port city, one of the last centers of Nazi resistance.

Pope Receives Taylor

LONDON (INS)—The Vatican radio reported that Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's representative at the Vatican, was received in audiences by Pope Pius XII.

Yanks' Invasion Toll, 24,162

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, June 28 (AP)—The supreme command announced today the first two weeks of the European invasion cost the Allies 40,549 casualties, including 24,162 Americans killed, wounded and missing.

Of the casualty total for the period from June 6 to June 20, inclusive, 5287 were killed—of which 3082 were Americans, 1842 British and 363 Canadians.

A large percentage of the American casualties came in the first two bloody days of fighting on the beaches where elements of the First and 29th divisions ran head-on into a German division practicing invasion exercises along the landing coast.

Complete Allied figures for the two-week period: United States—3082 killed, 13,121 wounded, and 7959 missing, a total of 24,162. British—1942 killed, 8599 wounded, and 3131 missing, a total of 13,572. Canadian—343 killed, 1309 wounded, and 1093 missing, a total of 2815. Out of the 40,549 casualties, 5287 were killed, 23,078 wounded, and 12,183 missing. The per cent of fatal casualties in the total was 7.6 per cent. The per cent of American killed was 12.7, the British 13.5, and Canadian 12.9. Source of the missing probably are dead, where are prisoners.

Vice-Presidential Possibilities

Dewey and Bricker Seen GOP Choice

By PAUL MILLER

Chief of The Associated Press Washington Bureau

CHICAGO, June 28 (AP)—A Dewey-Bricker ticket seized the imagination of the Republican National Convention today as it met for its climactic D-Day session. There remained a distinct possibility, however, that a dark horse candidate may emerge as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's running mate, now that California's Gov. Earl Warren has bowed out of the picture.

GOV. THOMAS E. DEWEY IN ALBANY, N. Y.
Keeping In Touch With Convention by Phone

Dewey's managers, sure their man will capture the presidential nomination, extended the peace pipe to their nearest rival and said they would be glad to support Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio for second place.

Bricker, faced with probably the most difficult decision of his political career, had no immediate comment. But when Gov. Warren eliminated himself unequivocally from vice-presidential consideration last night, Bricker had said:

"Whatever happens, I'll do everything in my power to carry the country this fall for the ticket that is chosen here."

Nevertheless, his supporters continued to insist that Bricker's name would be placed in nomination for the top spot, thus opening the way to other possibilities if the Ohioan decides on all or nothing.

This question probably will be settled at a caucus of the Ohio delegation after the morning session, at which the nominating speeches are being made, if not before.

WARREN REFUSES

The drive to draft Gov. Warren for second place sagged after the big Californian, besieged from all sides, flatly said: "I could not accept a nomination for a place on the national ticket if it were offered."

This set off mounting tension over the vice-presidential question which dominated the convention's third day after a night session in which a platform was adopted without apparent dissent; former President Hoover was cheered to the rafters when he lambasted the New Deal, and Rep. Clare Boothe

Dry Era Hit Police

How the link between prohibition and politicians dealt a devastating blow to the morale and efficiency of the Boston police is set forth in this fourth article of the series on the unhealthy conditions that still prevail in the department.

By BARRINGTON WELLES

Under the administration of Commr. Herbert A. Wilson there was created and developed in the Boston police department a liquor and vice investigation unit to handle these offshoots of the prohibition era.

This unit in turn produced Oliver B. Garrett, elevating an obscure patrolman from the ranks to become nationally known as Boston's Liquor Czar in a spectacular career that culminated a term at Deer Island House of Correction after he pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge.

Garrett cut a wide swath of law enforcement at the height of his power, but his extraordinary activities were superficial and only sank the morale of the department lower—particularly when two of its outstanding active captains were transferred to desk jobs after they had refused to take orders from him.

With politicians in the saddle, headquarters detectives—from plainclothes patrolmen to chief inspectors—were under orders from above to let liquor and vice condi-

All But 8 N. E. Delegates For Dewey on 1st Ballot

By FRANK REILLY

Record-American Staff Writer

CHICAGO, June 28—With all but eight of New England's 92 votes definitely in the Dewey column, representatives of the six Northeastern states entered the Republican national convention balloting session today hopeful that the final roll call would find the entire slate lined up in unanimous support of the New York governor.

Fair and Warm For 2 Days More

It's the humidity and not the heat that's wringing your collar, the weatherman blithely announced as consolation for the mounting mercury today. With a temperature of 83 reported at noon, the humidity was 63 per cent, 18 per cent above the normal for that reading; although today's high probably will match yesterday's 91 degrees, according to the weather bureau, which predicts fair and warm weather for at least another 48 hours.

Dewey Plane Set For Chicago Hop

ALBANY, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—His acceptance speech in his pocket, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey prepared to leave today for the Republican National Convention in Chicago as soon as he has been chosen the party's standard bearer in the 1944 presidential election. A 23-passenger plane was at the Albany airport ready to take Dewey, four members of his official family, and a corps of newspapermen to the convention city.

The other three are members of the Maine delegation, and they likewise are determined to present the name of the Massachusetts executive to the gathering for consideration for either first or second place on the ticket. State leaders said these extremists would be in the Dewey lineup when the roll of states is called.

When Massachusetts delegates heard that Gov. Earl Warren of California would not accept the vice-presidential nomination, regardless of the conditions under which he received it, the group became split over a second choice.

Gov. Bricker of Ohio ranked as first choice of most delegates, with Gov. Green of Illinois, second. Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, is said to be the dark horse candidate to whom most New England delegates will throw their votes if a deadlock develops.

Night Club Owner Rubin Held in Midnight Killing

Joe Rubin, 48, well-known night club owner, was held on a charge of manslaughter and unlawful possession of a revolver today after a Municipal Court hearing in the fatal shooting of Guy Formica, 35, the boy friend of a dancer at Rubin's night spot, the Showtime.

The warrant was issued by Special Justice Elias Shamon. Warrants were also sought against a number of witnesses, including the dancer, as material witnesses.

Formica was shot down in Warren-ton st., in the aftermath of what police charge was an argument and fist fight over dismissal of the dancer.

The victim died five hours later at City Hospital. He was employed as a bartender at a Stuart st. tavern and lived at a Warren-ton st. hotel, only a few doors from the spot he fell.

CLAIMS HOLDUP PLAN

Among the first witnesses rounded up was a hotel cashier, who claimed he witnessed the affray from a window only a few feet away.

"He tried to hold me up," Rubin is quoted as telling police. "Yes, I shot him. I had $600 on me and he tried to rob me."

Others held by police for lengthy questioning included Alexander Montolongo, a Navy seaman, who had been a guest throughout the evening at Rubin's club. Another was Salvatore Di-Carlo, a bartender at the Showtime.

A short time later, inspectors picked up and questioned Doris Close, pretty blonde dancer, of Lakewood, R. I., who allegedly told police of her friendship for the victim.

The shooting occurred a few minutes after Rubin had closed

Noxon Son to Take Stand If Film Shown

By PAULINE WARREN

PITTSFIELD, June 28—John F. Noxon, Jr., will take the stand to give his own version of the tragic death of his baby son, Lawrence, the youngster he is accused of murdering.

The baby's mother also will be a witness, and, if Judge Abraham E. Pinanski permits a jury showing of home-made movies of the infant, John F. Noxon, 3d, 16-year-old schoolboy and only other child of the couple, also will make a courtroom appearance.

It was the latter who took movies of the Noxon baby last July 4—movies the defense claims show clearly that baby Lawrence was strong and well able to grasp for the cord that brought electrocution death.

All this was disclosed by Defense Counsel Joseph B. Ely to day as Dr. Charles C. Lund of Harvard Medical School was taken under cross-examination by Dist. Atty. Charles R. Alberti.

Dr. Lund, who won international fame for his work among the horribly burned of the Cocoanut Grove fire, testified that the burn on the Noxon baby's arm could have been caused in one minute or more.

After qualifying as an expert on burns, the Boston physician admitted, however, he had never performed an autopsy where death had been caused by electric shock from a 110-120 household current.

Preceding Dr. Lund on the stand were Alston A. Tilou, General Electric Co. electrical engineer, and Frederick Retallick, who testified earlier for the prosecution and was brought back by the defense. The latter made the electrical installations in the Noxon home.

6 Bodies Found In Plane Wreck

MILLINOCKET, Me., June 28 (AP)—Army searchers found six dead in the wreck of a C-5 transport plane on 3900-foot Fort Mountain in the Katahdin range.

The bodies were found at the spot, 50 feet from the peak, where the four-engined craft crashed in a storm eight days ago, and a seventh was believed to be under the wreckage, said an Army spokesman returning from the mountain today.

None of the victims were New Englanders.

The plane, carrying mail, cargo, a lone Army passenger and a civilian contract crew of six, was en route from England to Washington.

WILLIAMSTOWN, June 28 (AP)—Williams college awarded degrees today to 19 graduates, the smallest class in many years.

President Victor L. Butterfield, of Wesleyan college, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws. Other honorary degrees went to Judge William A. Burns of the Massachusetts superior court; Lawrence A. Hawkins, executive engineer of the research laboratories of the General Electric Co.; Charles L. Taylor, edan of the Episcopal theological school at Cambridge; Col. Hamilton H. Kellogg, U. S. Army chaplain; and Hamilton B. Wood, of Worcester. All but Butterfield were Williams graduates.

up his night club and was approaching his automobile nearby.

FIST FIGHT FIRST

With him were his wife, Doris, his 16-year-old daughter, Marilyn, and Montolongo, who had been invited to accompany the Rubins to a late supper.

They were about to enter the car when Formica approached. In an ensuing argument, fists were swung on all sides, according to witnesses.

First to go down was Montolongo, stiffened with a right to the jaw. It was then that the single shot was fired.

Witnesses said Formica ran about 70 feet before collapsing on the sidewalk.

Special Officers Albert Hurst and Dennis Reardon said they arrived to find the hotel cashier beating Rubin.

DIES AS HE TELLS

The cashier and the four other witnesses were herded together and taken with Rubin to Warren ave. police station.

The victim was rushed to City Hospital where doctors for five hours waged a losing battle. The .38 caliber bullet lodged in his abdomen.

A minute before death, Formica regained consciousness, according to police stationed at his bedside.

"There was an argument and a fight," they quoted him as saying. "Just give me a minute to get my breath and I'll tell you all about it." He died before he could tell more.

During hours of questioning, Rubin clung to his story that he did not know the victim and was convinced he was being robbed. The charge of suspicion of murder was placed against him after Formica died.

Rubin had been a well known figure in Boston night life since

U. S. Bombers Rip Nazi Dromes

LONDON, June 28 (AP)—A great Allied aerial offensive aimed at flattening every German operational airbase in France was resumed today with a triple attack by at least 750 American heavy bombers after the RAF had hurled 1000 planes against two key rail centers in France and rocket installations along the channel coast during the night.

The Couvren, Athies and Juvin-court airfields—all in the vicinity of Laon—were blasted in clear weather this morning by Flying Fortresses and Liberators escorted by Thunderbolts, Mustangs and Lightnings.

In daylight this morning another formation of RAF Halifaxes with fighter escort bombed the flying-bomb emplacements in France.

Railway yards at Saarbrücken and unspecified military targets in the Paris and Laon areas also were attacked by Fortresses and Liberators.

The British overnight operations followed a day of Allied aerial activity in which more than 2,000 sorties were flown in unfavorable

Since Pearl Harbor, he had become one of the best known War Bond salesmen in the city. Garbed in his Legion uniform he sold bonds on Boston Common and on automobile tours of the city. He was a member of Post 270, American Legion, and claimed to have sold more than $500,000 worth of bonds during the last two years.

Paper Crisis Still On, N. E. Told

With wood-cutting for paper pulp at its lowest ebb, Lt. Col. Curtis H. Hutchins, regional representative of WPB's pulpwood branch, today urged greater efforts in the salvage of waste paper as the only means to pass the present crisis.

Hutchins said 1000 prisoners of war now are at work in northern New England forests, but added the industry still had only about 50 per cent of the normal number of skilled woodsmen.

"New England paper mills must be kept running and every scrap of waste paper from homes and offices is needed for war demands that lie ahead," Hutchins said.

Hyannis and Randolph will have collections next Sunday, while Thursday, July 6, has been set as pick-up day in Canton.

Cops Put Crimp In New 'Mayor'

"Mayor" Michael A. Sullivan, self-proclaimed successor to Mayor John H. Corcoran of Cambridge, had a police guard today as he entered his second day in "office" and the guardians were especially careful of "hizzoner's" person.

It was a high-ranking guard, consisting of Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy and Capt. Robert J. Douglas, Jr. They were very zealous in their duties, even to the extent of preventing the "mayor" from entering the City Hall office of his "predecessor."

"Mayor" Sullivan didn't seem to understand that the chief and captain were only trying to help him. He labored under the impression they were barring him from the mayor's office.

HAS CORRIDOR "OFFICE"

With that idea in mind, the "mayor" testily asked Chief Leahy "who told you to keep me out?"

"Why, Mr. Mayor, I was informed by the mayor's clerk—Mayor Corcoran, not Mayor Sullivan—that you were not to go into the office," Leahy replied politely, with a vague attempt at clicking his heels and bowing from the waist.

"Mike the Dude," as the new "mayor" is known affectionately by his Kerry Corner constituents, thought that over a minute and decided to hold office hours in the corridor outside the office ordinarily used by Cambridge mayors.

BARRED FROM OFFICE

Seated in a huge leather chair he dragged out of the nearby clerk of committee's office, "Mayor" Sullivan held court with a telephone book and a pile of personal mail in his lap.

"It's a little difficult this way, especially when I've got a phone book but no phone," Sullivan told newsmen who gathered for a press conference.

Once while Douglas appeared to be offguard, the "mayor" made a dash for the private entrance to the office. He shoved open the door and found the ample frame of Chief Leahy barring the way.

"Now, Mr. Mayor, I'm sorry, but you just can't come in here. I'm afraid that's final, too," he said gently but firmly.

Still puzzled, Sullivan talked of getting injunctions and "talking with my lawyer."

"Something's wrong here, and I think it's the idea of City Manager John B. Atkinson," he told reporters.

He had some remarks to make about Corcoran, who was absent in New Bedford, in pursuit of the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

"I don't think he's out of the city and, if he is, what right's he got to use a city-owned car running all over the state?" Sullivan asked.

Just in case his guards were not acting in his best interests, "Mayor" Sullivan hurried into the clerk of committee's office and removed his personal records from the office safe. He hugged them down to his car parked in the rear of city hall, commenting:

"This is just a precaution, because the way dictatorial government is spreading I wouldn't be surprised if I was thrown out of the building entirely."

The "mayor's" attitude puzzled City Hall veterans whosaw Chief Leahy snap to attention, salute smartly, and greet Sullivan with "good morning, Mr. Mayor," and then shake hands.

Such friendliness couldn't possibly be misunderstood, the observers commented.

With all this going on, Corcoran continued zithely along his campaign tour. He didn't mind Sullivan being "mayor" so long as "Mike's" term expired by tomorrow when Corcoran is due back in Cambridge.

NEW YORK, June 28 (INS)—Fordham University officials report that the university seismograph recorded two "very severe" earthquakes this morning, the first occurring at 4:05, and the second at 4:10 EWT.

It was estimated the shocks occurred 2170 miles from New York, which would place them either in Nicaragua or in Guatemala.

Plane-Guided Third Group Attempts Canyon Rescue

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., June 28 (AP)—Army airmen were to attempt today, from a four-engine bomber cruising along the north rim of Grand Canyon, to guide by radio a third ground party to three parachutists stranded for a week on a desert plateau.

Two groups of park rangers, mounted on 33 saddle and pack mules, were en route to the nearest accessible point on the floor of the mile-deep gorge to the marooned fliers.

The river parties will be separated from the base of the plateau by the Colorado river estimated at 300 to 400 feet wide and 30 feet deep.

The military party will include two rangers who have spent their lives in the canyon country. The unit is prepared to use ropes and mountain equipment in dropping 1500 feet down the gorge walls to the plateau.

Army officers could offer no explanation of two green flares fired from the plateau yesterday. Previously arranged signals directed the marooned men Monday to fire a green flare for each one safe. Three flares were discharged.

One of the marooned airmen is Flight Officer Maurice J. Cruikshank, Jr., of Lawrence, Mass.

1900 Workers Needed To Move War Supplies

An urgent appeal for 1900 workers were made today by William A. Foley, director of First Civil Service Region, who said the men and women were needed to keep supplies moving to our armed forces.

Foley said the workers were wanted at Watertown Arsenal, Quartermaster Depot and the Port of Embarkation. Laborers, lift operators, welders and machine operators are needed.

Quiz Former Flier In McGrath Killing

A former Army flier was under questioning by State and Scituate police today and a State Prison parolee was sought as the investigation into the brutal kidnap slaying of Frances McGrath was intensified with the discovery of footprints in an abandoned Norwell cabin.

The flier, whose military and civil record was "clean," according to police, appeared at Scituate headquarters voluntarily when he learned police wanted to talk with him.

While the ex-pilot was being quizzed, Police Chief Michael Stewart and State Police Lieut. Norman Butler left the building to find the parolee.

According to police, the flier was seen talking with the former convict for more than three hours on the afternoon of June 10, the date little Frances disappeared. The conversation, police said, took place in a South Scituate tavern and authorities sought to learn the subject of the long talk.

Meanwhile, State Police Photographer William Ratigan, with other officials were searching the shack off Summer st., where Lt.

Michael Cullinane found footprints and a bloodstained cloth.

Authorities said they hope this new evidence would provide the needed lead in linking a suspect to the girl's disappearance.

Detective Cullinane revealed that a minute search of the shack, which investigators believe may have been the kidnapper's hideout, disclosed small footprints in straw and also the imprint of a body. Cullinane said the shack is about two miles from where the body was found, and declared the door was open when he entered it.

The investigator ordered samples of dirt from the floor be taken to state police headquarters for comparison with the victim's footprints.

Winthrop Flier Hails Guy on the Ground

Chalk up modesty as another attribute of Uncle Sam's fighter pilots whose heroic air exploits made possible the capture of Cherbourg.

For all his bravery as one of the P-47 Thunderbolt pilots who came to the rescue of another fighter plane and emerged victors in a dog fight with an FW 190, Lt. Robert J. Collins, 22, of Circuit rd., Winthrop, thinks "the guys on the ground have guts, and no fooling."

In one of the first letters from the invasion front, Lt. Collins, attached to the Eighth AAF Fighter Force in England, wrote his mother, Mrs. Clarence B. Collins: "Those guys in Normandy fight all day and night and have no time for a show or a beer."

Minimizing his own deeds, Lt. Collins had only words of praise for "the guys who have really been through hell."

Lt. Collins wrote of the air battle:

"It was one of the most complicated affairs I've ever been in. We spotted a formation which appeared to be all Jerries but when we climbed higher we noticed there were two P-47s chasing a Focke Wulf, with another FW chasing our P-47s. We tacked on to the rear to divert the attention of the trailing Jerry who was pouring lead into one of the 47s.

LT. ROBERT J. COLLINS
Hero Flier Lauds Doughboys

"The Hun pilot maneuvered right across my path. I opened fire from 150 yards and scored many hits. There was an explosion in the front of the enemy ship and pieces of the plane fell off. It then rolled over and went flaming into the ground. I don't think the pilot got out of that wreckage alive."

"The more we can do to help those brave fellows fighting on the ground over here, the better we will like it."

"I would like to know how the people in the States are taking the news. We all sleep and sit around hearing radio programs as though nothing was happening."

Lt. Collins, a graduate of Winthrop High School, was a draftsman prior to his enlistment Jan. 28, 1942. He was commissioned Jan. 14, 1943, at Marianna Army Air Base, Fla. He arrived overseas last September.

Report Nazi Troops Reach Finnish Front

STOCKHOLM, June 28 (AP)—With the Finnish government finally committed to fighting on beside Germany,

Nazi troops moved into Finland's cities and towns in force today in response to a plea for help against the onrushing Soviet armies.

Helsinki resounded with the songs of marching German regular troops and SS guards. The Germans seemed to be occupying all parts of the country, and it was reported some already were at the eastern front, where previously the Finns fought alone.

A Finnish communique proclaimed perfect understanding had been reached between Germany and Finland, and said that, in answer to a Finnish appeal, German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop had promised military aid.

Swedish dispatches said that so complete was Finland's alignment with the Nazis that henceforth the Finnish communique would be a part of the German communique. Thus ended Finland's pretensions that she was fighting a separate war with Russia.

As the Germans took possession of Helsinki, Associated Press Correspondent Robert Sturdevant managed to telephone from there, despite stringent censorship: "I am moving—I emphasize moving—to the American legation tonight. Watch Berlin."

Sturdevant said Finnish President Risto Ryti initiated the request for German aid.

PORT BOU, Spain, June 28 (AP)—French guerrillas striking in the Tarbes region of the Pyrennes, have cut the railroad between the junctions of Auch and Tarbes in a raid on Mielan, about half way between those two points, it was reported today.

Farther north French Patriot forces were reported to have taken hostages from local collaborationists in the Villeneuve region.

Kelly Hits Cook's Ballot 'Defiance'

In a letter to Sec. of State Fred- eric W. Cook, Francis E. Kelly, Democratic candidate for attorney general, today charged him with "complete defiance" of a State Supreme Court decision by failing to include Kelly's name on ballots in 41 towns and six cities in western Massachusetts.

Claiming that "in fairness to the voters my name should be printed on all Democratic ballots in every city and town in Massachusetts," Kelly asserted that Cook is complying "with an illegal decision of the State Ballot Law Commission which the high court has declared illegal and void."

During recent court hearing, Cook testified the printing of the ballots had to begin June 12 if the job was to be completed on time. This was two days before Kelly carried his fight to the Supreme Court, protesting the Ballot Law Commission's action in ruling his name off.

Luce told the delegates the Administration is "distorting our democracy into a dictatorial bumble-dom."

Dark horse vice-presidential possibilities, as discussed among the delegates, included Rep. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska, Gov. Simeon S. Willis of Kentucky and Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Another possibility is Lt. Com. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota. Stassen's supporters, like Bricker's however, said they were out for the No. 1 spot and would accept nothing less.

The blonde Mrs. Luce, congress- woman from Connecticut, suggested that "skillful and determined" statesmanship during Mr. Roosevelt's three terms might have headed off the war. There has been a decade of "confusion and conflict that ended in war," she said.

Mrs. Luce, only women allotted a major speaking role, called for the election of a president "who loves his country more than he loves power."

With a wide open foreign plank by which to chart his campaign course on the postwar peace issue, Dewey is expected to enlarge on his April declaration for "a structure of peace backed by adequate force to prevent future wars."

DEWEY TO DECIDE

Most Republican politicians agreed that what Dewey says, rather than what the convention approved yesterday, will write the GOP's foreign policy in November.

There were many who thought the measure of Wendell L. Willkie's support for the nominee, or lack of it, would be determined by how far Dewey goes in espousing an international organization, equipped with military force calculated to cow incipient aggressors.

The platform plank qualifying its promise of "responsible" American participation in a security organization with a ban on a "world state" and the debatable direction for "peace forces" to prevent war, left Dewey room to bear wide at the turn or stick close to the rail. Largely because it was represented as having Dewey's textual approval, the plank won convention endorsement without the fight which 15 Republican governors had threatened.

Some of the governors made it plain they subsidized only because they had faith that Dewey would be for effective international organization.

Confession Halts Other Man's Trial

DETROIT, June 28 (AP)—Prosecutor William E. Dowling announced today that Robert Miller Turner, 20, arrested last night, has made a "complete confession" to the murder last March 27 of 14-year-old Joyce Raulston on a dump near Detroit's western city limits.

Dowling said he would request immediately a delay in the case of Richard Vincent, now being tried on a murder charge in Wayne circuit court for the Raulston girl's death, while Turner's story is investigated.

"SALADA" TEA

By MARTHA KEARNEY

CHICAGO, June 28 (INS)—Self-possessed, smiling Anne Dewey, mother of Gov. Dewey, has transformed a ritzy, modernistic penthouse suite atop a Chicago hotel here into an Owspso, Mich. living room.

Mrs. Dewey looks only a little older than Dewey himself. She uses nail polish and achieves a very attractive make-up job. Her hair is short and neat. She was completely at ease at a news conference.

Her answers were terse, accurate, humorous.

Some typical questions and answers:

"What did you want Tom to be when he was little?"

"A good boy."

"Did he show any early signs of statesmanship?"

"He could have been a street car conductor or fireman for all you could tell."

"Do you have any views on postwar planning or permanent peace?"

"No—I leave that for the smart people."

"Can you recall any incidents from his childhood for publication?"

"No—I should have kept a book but I didn't."

Mrs. Dewey balked at only one question.

"Do you mind telling us your age?" she was asked.

"I do," she answered with a wry smile.

Union Chiefs Split On GOP Labor Plank

CHICAGO, June 28 (AP)—The Republican labor plank, a slashing indictment of the New Deal, basked in praise of a United Mine Workers' spokesman today but appeared unsatisfactory to the AFL and presumably to the CIO, which is pro-Roosevelt.

K. C. Adams, editor of the United Mine Workers Journal and personal emissary of John L. Lewis, is before the labor subcommittee, called the plank eminently satisfactory. AFL President William Green found the plank disappointing and said the GOP has missed a great opportunity.

Flier Saves Buddy Perforated by Flak

By HUCK RINNEGAN

EIGHTH AIR FORCE, England—If S-Sgt. Robert Turcotte, RFD 3, Brattleboro, Vt., lives to be 100, he will never forget John Callahan of Evans st., Medford, or the Red Cross and its blood plasma. The handsome 23-year-old owes his life to them. Listen to his story:

"It was my eighth mission, the date was Nov. 30. We were flying over Solingen, Germany. Flak was exceptionally heavy, and a piece pierced the ball turret armor plate, hit me in the back and went right through me.

"I didn't lose consciousness. If I had, I couldn't have breathed. I can recall Callahan plugging up the holes front and back with pads of gauze, so that the lung wouldn't collapse. Fed me oxygen, too. All the time he was taking care of his own job—radio operator and gunner. He was a marvel.

Cpl. Roland H. Keenan Portsmouth.

S-Sgt. George J. Downs Dedham.

SIX PINTS OF BLOOD
"We were taking a good shelling. I know we limped home on two engines (it was a Flying Fortress) and the trip back took four hours. Callahan nursed me like a brother all the way. I passed out of the picture as soon as we landed."

Six pints of blood plasma were injected into the youngster before he could be moved from the plane. Then came a stay in the hospital, until March 20. He returned to his crew but his lung had collapsed and they wouldn't let him fly again.

New he's clerking in the operations office but has the satisfaction of knowing that his lung is nearly back to normal. He's hoping when it is itself again, he may once more crouch in the ball turret of his ship and shower death on the Nazis.

FRIEND GOES HOME
Callahan? He completed his tour and is now back in his Medford home, enjoying a well-earned rest. Get him to tell the story. He'll remember the details more plainly than Turcotte.

The lad who told us about Turcotte was Corp. John J. Griffin, 182 Grant ave., Medford, who knew Callahan in pre-war days. Griffin is the armament crew chief of Leden Maiden, a ship that is compiling an enviable record at this station.

He's a tall, bespectacled lad who graduated from Malden Catholic and then studied a couple of years at Holy Cross. He's sporting a Sing-Sing hair-do, and takes a lot of ribbing from his Texas crew mates. He's a home-loving youngster who lived with his mother and sister Rita.

"Will you be returning to the States soon?" he asked. "If you do, will you call Mom, tell her you saw me and that I'm getting along well. Two of the fliers went back some time ago, and they promised to call on her. Sister Rita works in S. S. Pierce's and came home with something good. But the fliers never did show up. Mom was terribly disappointed."

This is to let Mrs. Griffin know that her son is doing a little better than all right. He's got a million friends here, and he'll make more wherever he goes.

HIRES TO LONDON

S-Sgt. George J. Downs, 12 Louis rd., Dedham, looks as if he hasn't a worry in the world. He's got a clerical job at staff headquarters, and he's not working as hard as he did in the Downs grocery in Dedham—"but don't let Dad know." He weighs the same 175 he took into the Army, even though he plays a lot of softball.

When the sameness of the days becomes boring, George hits to London for a change. It's been 17 months since he's been home. In the interim, brother Eddie, 27,

CPL. JOHN J. GRIFFIN Medford

S-SGT. STUART HOBRON New London, Ct.

S-SGT. ROBERT TURCOTTE Brattleboro, Vt.

has joined the Army, brother Leo, 29, the Navy.

George, 23, graduated from Dedham High in '37, then attended Burdett.

HAS FUTURE MAPPED

Cpl. Roland H. Keenan, who lived with his wife at 59 Bow st., Portsmouth, N. H., before entering the Army, has his post-war plans mapped out.

"First of all, I'm going to get a big drum of ice cream and eat it all by myself. Then I'm going to buy a brand new car (I hope) and go places."

Keenan's wife now works in a plane factory in Hartford and makes her home in that city, but his father is still in Portsmouth, RFD 2. The 142-pound youngster used to be flying engineer, but the Army learned he had been a mechanic in civilian life, and a mechanic he is today, repairing trucks and jeeps in the station's motor pool.

"Say, can you do anything about the mail situation?" he asked. "I get my mail in clusters of 15 at a time."

FOOTBALL ADDICT

You might expect a chap who worked hard to get through college, only to be shunted into the Army upon graduation, to carry a gripe. But S-Sgt. Stuart Hobron, 41 Berkeley ave., New London, Ct., is happy in his job as radio operator even though he prepared for an advertising career at Syracuse, U., where he took his degree in '42.

Hobron played the drum in Syracuse U.'s band, and became a football addict. "Boy, that inverted center play of Ossie Solem's was a any players? I bet they wish they could dip into the material around this campus," he said, eyeing a bunch of Texans who looked big enough to flatten Sammy Baugh. Davy O'Brien and John Kimbrough with a swipe of the hand.

Chunky Hobron has reduced from 180 to 165 in his two years of Army life, "and never felt better, nad an alderman," he admitted.

Get after those weeds today, tomorrow and the next day. Keep everlastingly after them during the next two weeks if you want a good crop yield.

With the ground well soaked by last week's rains and warm weather now with us, the finest growing period of the summer is just ahead. But weeds grow, too, and they must be pulled up by the roots.

THIN SEEDLINGS HARD

Planting extra seed in the row is almost necessary to insure a good stand as small seeds do not come up well if planted thinly. After the seed is up, however, the crops such as beets, carrots and turnips, must be thinned to give satisfactory results. Crowded plants will not produce uniform crops and are usually weak and susceptible to disease. Plants must be spaced properly to get full benefit from the light, which is necessary for a strong rugged growth. In thinning beets and carrots for home use they can be partially thinned at first and then thinned by using the larger ones as they mature. This may delay your harvest a little, but will give you a better supply of high quality crops.

TOMATO STAKES

Tomato stakes should be about five feet high. I have noticed a lot of tomatoes trained to stakes not more than three feet. A good plant will be over the top of these short stakes before long. It is not too late to put in new stakes or add to the old ones.

The question of mulching is now coming up. If you have some old hay or straw available, it will pay to mulch some crops, especially tomatoes. It might be well to keep in mind, however, that you should side-dress the crop with fertilizer before applying the mulch. To be effective, the mulch must be heavy enough to cover the ground completely, and it must be laid evenly. Do not allow weeds to get through the mulch.

Keep your eyes peeled for insects. The striped cucumber beetle and the Mexican bean beetle are on the job. Control with rotenone dust before they get started.

Wellesley Flier Cited for Exploit

Sec. Lt. Malcolm W. Jenkins, 21, of Washington st., Wellesley, has been commended for action during a recent bombing attack on Brunswick, Ger., it was disclosed today. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Jenkins.

When the ship's bomb release system became damaged over the target, Jenkins made speedy repairs so that all bombs were away only seconds afterwards. Then, when his bomber dropped behind formation, he mapped a course safely back to England.

Mrs. Jenkins said she had just received a letter telling how her son bombed Nazi installations in advance of the landings on D-Day.

tion alone. Apparently unaware of his department's delinquencies was the politically-appointed commissioner as well as his sponsor.

Conditions finally became such that all Boston newspapers raised a outcry, but the then Gov. Frank P. Allen backed the commissioner stoutly under eight months of abuse from September, 1929 until the following May.

"I have the utmost confidence in Police Comm. Wilson's ability to run his department," was Gov. Garrison's reply to all critics.

LEADER ORDERED

Thus, despite the fact that Allen's professor, Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, caused an investigation by two of the best detectives in the state has known of the manner in which Garrett and his squad were operating and the conditions existing at the time.

This investigation by two honest and efficient men charged collusion and other nefarious operations by The Duck—a nickname recently coined by a local reporter after he had run afoul of Garrett in a raid.

At this point it might be well to review some of the practices developed from the prohibition era and from the operations of Garrett and his squad and their consequent effect on the morale of a department.

TAKING THE RAP

Speakeasy operators with the right connections operated in some instances throughout the prohibition era without a single conviction.

The practice of pleading guilty or "taking the rap" by underlings for their bootlegging bosses became an increasingly common occurrence when leaders were caught.

It was widely charged that if the right price was paid often enough to the right person, no speakeasy operator or liquor dealer had to worry about interference from any police officer, from plainclothesman to captain of the division. Remember, detectives and division commanders were under orders to let liquor and vice conditions be handled by Garrett and his squad.

Honest officers of all ranks were broken overnight or shifted to outlying divisions if they had the temerity to report that liquor was being sold on their beats or even that they suspected liquor or vice operations were going on.

The vice phase of the unfortunate situation was first proven officially when federal officials entered the picture in 1929 and 1930 and obtained indictments against a score of panders and operators of houses of ill repute.

SOME CONFESS

Investigation disclosed that 15-year-old girls—in one case a daughter of a New York police officer—were enmeshed in the toils of white slaves, and confessions to this effect were obtained from some arrested on white slavery charges.

The investigation even revealed that some of the houses of ill fame were being sold dairy products by police officers.

One newly-appointed patrolman, after making his first tour of duty on a division some three miles from headquarters, reported to his captain that he believed liquor was being sold at a certain address.

"There are 37 churches in this division," the captain bellowed. "If you find anyone connected with these churches selling liquor you let me know about it."

CAPTAIN'S ADVICE

Another ambitious young man was assigned with his newly-won sergeant's chevrons to a downtown division and, after his second tour of evening duty, reported to his captain that he was sure liquor was being sold at a certain place. The captain asked the sergeant the address of the suspected building. When it was furnished by the junior officer, the veteran replied:

"If you look hard enough at that building, you will see a nice plot of green grass in front of the place. I planted seed on that plot of grass and I watered the ground and brought it along carefully until it developed into a fine lawn."

"Now, why don't you smarten up and go out and find yourself a nice plot of ground where you can grow a fine green lawn?"

Boston newspapers finally caught the issue to a head and, in January, 1930, forced a joint House and Senate Garrett committee to recommend an investigation by Joseph E. Warner.

Conditions portrayed by the newspapers and even more were uncovered in the inquiry handled by Damon E. Hall, nationally-known attorney engaged as a special assistant by Warner.

GARRETT INDICTED

Finally, the case was dropped into the lap of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley for Suffolk county prosecution. Garrett was indicted and he summed up the case against the department's political masters tersely in a note he slipped to a reporter as he was walking to a political football out of me.

Prophetic words! (Tomorrow's installment tells how the Boston Police Department dropped to the ebb of morale and efficiency under another strictly political appointee, Eugene F. Hultman).

INVASION SHOW Deadline 4 Days Off

Time is getting short to buy war bonds and get your tickets of admission to the big INVASION BOND SHOW, to be held July 4 at the Charles river basin. There are just four days left.

Tickets and bonds are waiting at all Boston department and specialty stores. And don't forget that you can purchase bonds at your neighborhood bank and still get your ticket at any of the stores of the Boston Retail Trade

COL. VINCENT C. BREEN

Board just by showing proof of your purchase

Col. Vincent C. Breen, D. S. C., indicated today that all plans had been made for more than 1000 men of his 26th Infantry, Mass. State Guard, to handle the great throng expected to line both the Boston and Cambridge shores. The regiment was selected for this duty by the Adjutant General because of its outstanding record for military efficiency.

Extending the store bond campaign to have resulted meanwhile in a marked increase, but the goal is far from attained. Much hard work is necessary between now and the week-end. Sales forces of the 100 Boston stores, operating as a single unit, are in high gear as the deadline approaches. Thousands more of E, F and G bonds must be sold in order to make the retail trade campaign a success.

Col. Walter Brown, public relations officer of First Service Command, a genius at large scale productions, and the officers of the various branches of the armed forces assisting him are proud of the program perfected for the Independence Day war spectacle. Lt. Ralph J. Meyers, USMS, regional public relations officer, announced yesterday the part that men of the U. S. Maritime Service will play in the exhibition. Crews trained at Ft. Trumbull, New London, Ct., will demonstrate how barrage balloons, "duckings of the air" have skillfully broken up enemy air formations in attacking convoys and merchant shipping, and enabled our gallant men of the merchant marine to follow through with food, ammunition and war equipment.

USMS men also will show how they continue war communications with semaphore flags and deer-walkie-talkies, while radios are sealed and silenced in danger zones. They will abandon ship, make rescues and race in lifeboats.

A 10-YEAR-OLD HOUSING TEAM

For ten years private builders and lenders have teamed with the Federal Housing Administration to provide homes for millions of Americans. Builders have provided materials, plans, workmanship and "know-how." Private lending institutions have advanced the funds. FHA has insured the loans and provided standards of excellence to protect builder, lender and home owner alike.

10TH ANNIVERSARY

IN WAR. Since Pearl Harbor FHA mortgage insurance has helped private builders and lenders meet the additional risks involved in providing thousands of vitally needed living units for the nation's war industry workers.

IN PEACE. Before the war, in the years 1935 through 1941, this housing team produced over 800,000 homes, all privately built, privately financed, FHA insured at an average selling price of less than $5,000.

This is a record of which FHA can be proud—it is an achievement in which the private builders and lenders of Massachusetts are gratified to have played a part.

Tomorrow, when America has returned to its peacetime ways, the builders and lenders of America, with the FHA, look forward to the next big job which will challenge their energy, their ingenuity and their teamwork—the job of bringing better homes within the reach of more and more Americans and, thereby, of helping to provide employment for all.

THE TEN-YEAR RECORD OF ACCOMPLISHMENT IN THE MASSACHUSETTS AREA Under the FHA program.

- Better housing has been provided for 161,250 families.
- For this purpose private capital has advanced $105,800,000.
- 16,250 homes have been built or purchased under the FHA Plan for which private lending institutions have advanced $47,900,000.
- 131,000 families have received Home Improvement Loans amounting to $57,900,000.

Wise Mothers USE

WHITING'S

WHITING'S HOMOGENIZED Vitamin D MILK

WHAT "HOMOGENIZED" MEANS
Homogenization is a modern scientific process which breaks up and distributes the butterfat globules... thus blending the cream content evenly throughout the Milk. The last drop of Milk in the bottle has the same cream content as the first.

YES, today wise mothers depend on the health-giving qualities of Whiting's HOMOGENIZED VITAMIN D MILK for their youngsters. They've found that children love its richer, creamier flavor (the cream is distributed evenly through every drop), and they've found, too, that its extra Vitamin D content is an important aid in developing sound bone structure and teeth. Here are all of Milk's natural food values plus added nutrition and improved flavor. Children (and adults, as well) need its extra benefits!

HEALTH QUIZ

- Do you have poor digestion? ☐
- Do you feel headachy after eating? ☐
- Do you get sour or upset easily? ☐
- Do you feel tired—listless? ☐

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested, be sour and heavy within you. Thus, it is impossible to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's, taken as directed, aid digestion after Nature's own order. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—only 25¢. You'll be glad you did.

Copyright, 1944, by Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.

JIM leaves for Blighty in the morning.

He is taking his son home.

After supper, fellow correspondents—British and American—push into his tent to shake hands in brief embarrassment.

"Rotten luck, old man. About the boy, I mean..."

Jim is very casual.

"Much better this way. He'll be near the best doctors—and his mother of course..."

Londoners make polite requests, as Jim packs.

"Do you mind? It's a small package—I'll pay the duty on it now..."

"Jim, will you give my wife a ring? Say I'm all right and that sort of thing. Better phone her late though..."

"It certainly will be late!" Jim boasts with convincing joviality. "There'll be Claridge's and the Savoy—blondes, beauty, music!"

He accepts all packages and messages. That's Jim's way. He pointedly avoids comment about the purpose of his trip.

When he answers questions about Jim, Jr., it is as if everything was still all right...

"A great lad—more guts than any of us. Taught him to fly myself, you know, when he was just 14..."

(Jim, Sr., flew Camels as a fighter pilot in the RAF during the last war.)

"At 16 the lad was a good flier, but his eyes failed to pass the tests. So he joined up as part of a Lomber crew—photography and all that, like his old man."

Jim, Sr., is news editor of Paramount Pictures in London.

When this war broke out he took to the air again—as a newsreel photographer, sticking it out through 43 bomber missions—once limping home with 107 flak holes in the plane, once riding back safe in a Fortress hit in the full bomb-bay by a shell that didn't explode. Then Jim, Sr., sat back at his desk to watch Jim, Jr., carry out missions of his own—and the U. S. C.

"We really laid it on that night," Jim relates proudly. "Several RAF officers joined the celebration and before morning the lad took the lot of us home, he did!"

At that time, Jim, Jr., lived through a bale-out over Isonia and a shipwreck off Gibraltar.

What happened two weeks later someone else had to tell me... On his 44th mission, Jim Wright's only son crashed in flames in a B-26. This was in Italy.

Jim picks up his camera once more, comes to the Italian front to be near the boy. Now he's taking him home—badly smashed and burned. It will be toughest on the mother. She doesn't know Jim, Jr., is blind.

An American Keynote

THE KEYNOTE ADDRESS made before the Republican National Convention in Chicago by Governor Earl Warren of California was a dignified and temperate, yet DEVASTATING, summation of the nation's desperate and dire need of administrative change.

Indeed, as Governor Warren said, the need of the nation is for something more fundamental and vital than mere change.

America's real and urgent need, as he said, is for a CHANCE—a chance to restore its democratic process of government, to resume its democratic way of life.

American conventions and elections in war time "are not time out from the job of winning the war and the peace," he said in shattering reply to those who would have us suspend our democratic processes because we are at war.

They are an indispensable and essential PART OF THAT JOB.

Let us get efficiently on and victoriously THROUGH this "biggest job Americans have ever undertaken together," said Governor Warren.

Let us "get our boys BACK HOME AGAIN—victorious and with all speed," he urged as the greatest aim and desire of his party and his country.

Let us, he pleaded in behalf of the millions of American boys we have uprooted from home and family, "make and guard the peace so wisely and so well that this time will be the last time that American homes are called to give their sons and daughters to the agony and tragedy of war."

That is Governor Warren's "keynote."

HIS ADDRESS was full of courage and vigor. It was full of facts and truth.

It was full of love for his country, and reverence for its traditions, and faith in its institutions, and confidence in its future.

It was full of trust in the American people.

It recognized the debt that is upon every American for the blessings that accrue to him because of the devotion and the vision and the vigilance of the fathers and founders of his country.

It summoned every American to the performance of his duty to the institutions and principles upon which those blessings depend for security.

It was a courage-giving speech.

It was a spirit-lifting speech.

It spoke the voice of the American people.

In the recognition and understanding of all who heard and read it, it was AN AMERICAN SPEECH.

HE CALLED for a government "which believes that our economic soil, far from being worn out, is still life-giving, a government which believes that those who work honorably and well to make the soil produce, far from being a threat to our well-being, are the hope of it, a government which, far from penalizing production, encourages it, a government which believes in an economy of plenty because its aim for all the people is abundance."

We do not have such a government now, said Governor Warren, and indeed we have no government at all in the historic AMERICAN sense, but only an "ominous, gargantuan figure of an arrogant, power-intoxicated bureaucracy."

Why NOT change horses in the middle of the stream, he asked, when:

"For eleven long years we have been in the MIDDLE of the stream. We are not amphibious, we want to GET ACROSS."

It is more than the Republican party which has been given a keynote by Governor Warren.

The American people have been given AN AMERICAN KEYNOTE for their guidance, their instruction, and their inspiration.

CHICAGO, June 27—This Republican national convention is getting to be very trying and I was glad to learn today that it is not going to be permanent. I have it on the best authority that it is going to break up one of these days and there won't be another for ever so long.

The reason it is a nuisance is that it keeps interfering with my social life. Just as I get nicely settled at some perfect stranger's cocktail party—it seems to be against the rules here to drink on anybody you know—some busybody recalls that a session is about to convene and everybody scurries to the Stadium.

Naturally, this leaves me all alone because I would never dream of leaving any place where there was cuff, or free-loading liquor, still unconsumed. I regard such a practice as unconstitutional, if not downright subversive.

But, what I started to tell you about was a most peculiar piece of dialogue that took place at one of these political guzzling soirees. I was led to it by a lady who didn't know the host either, and the only person I recognized right off the bat was Mrs. Mary Holmes, sister of Steve Early, who works for a man in Washington named Roosevelt.

Mrs. Holmes fanned herself and observed that we were having quite Republican weather. I asked her if her brother was present.

"Why, no," she said. "I believe Steve is a Democrat. This is a sort of family skeleton and naturally I wouldn't want you to say anything about it, but Steve was always a bit tongue-tied even as a boy."

MRS. HOLMES introduced me to another lady whose name I did not catch. I murmured something like "I am glad to know you Mrs. Wuff-wuff!" and continued:

"It must be very nice for all you Republicans to get together this way. You must have so much in common."

On the Side

Distributed by King Features Synd., Inc. Of all the fairest cities of the earth.

None is so fair as Florence; 'Tis a gem Of purest ray; and what a light boreth forth When it emerged from darkness!

AS THIS is being written our forces are approaching Florence . . . In the days before Hitler and his ludicrous little accomplice, Mussolini, went wild, my favorite European city was Florence. That is, next to Paris. Was not so much the Florence of the present but

"Oh," replied the lady, "I have not gotten used to it yet. You see I am a brand new Republican."

"You mean you have not always been a Republican?" I gasped. "That is indeed interesting and if I had a pencil I would make a note of it. By the way, I did not quite get your name?"

"Farley!"

"That is a very nice name," I said. "I knew a man named Farley once. He used to be postmaster general under the old Roosevelt Administration. He was a Democrat just like Mrs. Holmes' brother, Stephen. I don't suppose you ever met him?"

"I believe I did," said the lady. "Casually, of course. I recall meeting him once at the altar and on several occasions subsequently. He is my husband."

I nodded brightly and said: "Then you must be Mrs. Boss Farley?"

"Well," said the lady, "if I must I must."

We talked more and the lady said she had turned Republican.

"But please make it clear," she said, "that I am only speaking for myself. My husband is still a good Democrat. However, I am very broad-minded and will certainly not let this interfere with our family life."

"Thank you, Mrs. Farley," I said. "And please let me apologize for not getting your name."

"That's quite all right," she said. "Don't give it another thought Mr. Dinkelsburg."

I FINALLY WENT out to the stadium and was quite thrilled by the spectacle. It was a wonderful sight, seeing all the other newspapermen working like anything while all I had to do was stroll up and down sneering at them.

I had no difficulty getting back to town again either and was consequently amazed to find other reporters writing sulphurous pieces about how they had been forced to walk on account of no taxicabs.

They asked how I had fared, obviously hoping to hear the worst.

"Why," I said, "there is nothing to it. All you have to do is find Officer Frank Hinkley, Badge No. 4292."

Apparently this baffled them, so I told them about Officer Hinkley.

I came out of the stadium with a couple of very hot numbers I won in a raffle. The ladies said they thought it would be silly to take a taxicab. I went out to the curb, stuck up a finger, and shouted "Taxi!"

Strangely, this elicited most unpleasant laughter from the crowd. But I kept my finger up and continued shouting. Two hours later my finger gave out and I realized that what they were laughing about was that there were no taxis.

We started walking. One of the ladies observed that Chicago was a very large town and the other observed something else, which I will not print because this is not asbestos paper.

One of the ladies squatted on a curbstone and was muttering a herself when Officer Hinkley came along. The lady looked up and said:

"I didn't do nothing, officer." "I'm sure you didn't," said the officer, who turned out to be Mr. Hinkley. "All I was going to say was that I am driving to town and I wonder if you would mind riding with me."

Well, it turned out we didn't mind a bit.

"I am from a small town," said Officer Hinkley as we rode, "and I was brought up to be friendly. Furthermore, I want you to think well of Chicago."

We told him we did—now. He said he has been on the force eight months and is still on probation. He likes it, he added.

One of the ladies asked him what was the most sensational crime he had handled since being a policeman.

"A mystery case," said Officer Hinkley. "A lady called up and said her neighbor had killed her dog and eaten it."

"But, do you know," said Officer Hinkley, "I don't think she did!"

facturing and banking city in Europe. In the 15th century, the city's wool industry had more than 200 factories employing a total of 30,000 men. It had 80 banks and enjoyed a business boom that lasted more than 200 years. At one time Florence had currency which had to be spent within a month or became worthless. According to historians, this period was one of unusual prosperity.

ART: The enthusiasm of the Florentines for art is still great. Their favorite picture seemed to be Raffaello's La Madonna del Gran Duca. Children are taken to see this picture by their parents and made to stand looking at it for an hour at a time. Titian's La Bella was in Florence the last time I was there. If this painting hasn't been stolen by the Nazis our boys will get an opportunity to know exactly what the color of a girl's hair should be in order that she may rightly call herself a "Titian blonde." Titian painted La Bella when he was 86 years old. He lived to be 93 years old. Just goes to show what an interest in blondes will do for a man.

LAWYERS, ETC.: During the Renaissance there were more than 600 lawyers in Florence. Their guild emblem was a gold eight-pointed star on a blue field. You can tell your lawyer that in case he wants to have the emblem of his profession on some fancy stationery . . . The Florentine chemists were the cleverest mixers of color in the history of the world. It is because of their skill that 14th and 15th century Florentine paintings look as fresh as at the time they were painted.

Hollywood Today

By Dorothy Manners

Submitting for Lucille Parsons, Now at G. O. P. Convention

HOLLYWOOD, June 28—The good old Hollywood game of contract battling breaks out in a new spot. Janet Blair's attorneys two days ago filed suit to break Janet's agreement with Columbia pictures.

Although she has risen to star status on this lot, her lawyers claim, in her behalf, that the deal was made when she was a minor. There are enough technicians involved to keep Janet's top of lawyers and the studio's top talent going in circles for months.

One of the chief hurdles is that 25 percent of the Blair girl's salary has been going to Alec Holden, former manager of Hal Kemp's band. He negotiated Janet's studio deal while she was a singer (and a minor) with the Kemp orchestra and has been cutting in ever since. In breaking the Holden contract, her attorneys argue, the Columbia deal becomes void, too.

HARRY CAREY is recovered from his recent illness and feels so fit he steps into the starring role in Monogram's million-dollar Chinese opus, "Little Drunk." This is the story based on China's children guerrilla army and the marvelous work the youngsters, many of them only 10 years old, have done against the Japs. Monte Bell is directing, and Grant Withers (yes, the former actor once married to Loretta Young) is the producer. But the best news is that Harry is well enough to be in his new again. He's been resting and his ranch since he returned from Broadway, when a heart attack forced him out of the stage cast of "But Not for Me."

WARNERS ARE letting no alfalfa grow underfoot building Joyce Reynolds to stardom. She's practically a cinch after "Janie" and "Junior Miss"—but just by way of making it three strikes in a row, I hear "Wallflower" has been handed her, too. Joyce is the former UCLA coed who came here from Texas for a college career and wound up with a hot movie contract. She looks about 16, but is really 20. Speaking of "Wallflower," Meyer Davis, producer of the Broadway show, is in Hollywood looking for a top name actress to star in the road company.

SIDELINES More news from L.O.P., the marathon walker at the Convention (and is she turning out swell color stories?) Wires the indefatigable Miss "P": "Run into Jackie Cooper and June Hone and it is definite they will marry when Jackie finishes his Navy training course. Had a long talk with them in the Ambassador Pump Room and he said he and June will be married around the first of the year. I would love to have the wedding at my house if the kids are in Hollywood at the time. How proud Mabel Cooper would be of Jackie had she lived to see him in his uniform." Then she goes on to say: "Guy Kibbee, Olsen and Johnson and Gracie Allen were at Governor Green's reception, singing with the elite of Chicago. . . . Leo Carrillo is here with the Governor Warren party. . . . Speaking of Gracie, she wrote George Burns the last letter he has ever received from her in 18 years of married life. They don't never before been separated, but that some sort of a record? I'm working like a dog but having fun, too." You needn't have added that, lady.

"Mickey! Let me take you away from all this!"

THE WOODS are full of boosters who believe Stuart Erwin should get the Will Rogers role. Heavens knows they have written enough letters about it. But even if Stu doesn't rate this part so clear to his heart (and the letter writers, he won't be idle. Martin Mooney at FRC has signed him for the top part in "At the Post." It is the real story of a horse called "Chase Me" who was known as the Horatio Alger of the turf. The nag was pulling a milk wagon when someone turned him into a racer, and he never lost a race.

AS MANNA F.F.L. from Heaven, so do stories land on Universal for "Turban Boy." Not content with announcing him for such assorted Julius as "Queen of the Nile," "Return of the Sheik," "Frisco Kate," "Bowery to Broadway" and "Night in Fern-die," a new masterpiece comes up bearing the title "Destiny."

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS: The cavedroppers on the recent Paulette Goddard-Mercanti focus at a local night spot aren't blaming Paulette; that bright torch lighting up Broadway is the one Jack Burke is carrying for Lana Turner since she left town. He is one of Max West's heroes in "Cathleen Was Great." J. Carroll Nash has received word that his brother, Lt. Herbert Nash, was wounded in the Italian campaign; a bright night at the Biograph brought out Norma Shearer, very smart in a black suit and white gloves dancing with her favorite lieutenant, Marty Aronoff. At a nearby table was Joan Crawford, in a joint dinner dress, with Bill Terry. Also Maria Montez in a hat that was a hit; Martha Tilton sings at Hollywood Canteen today. She should wave 'em; Russell Birdwell has authored a play, "Ten Per Cent of Heaven," which goes into rehearsal in four weeks. It's about a press agent or should we say "personal relations counsel?" Estel Breely Alexander has undergone a serious operation at Harkness Pavilion; June Clyde leaves soon for overseas show duty with the Jack Ruby troupe; Fred Astaire was with Jane Sorenson (a beauty) at the Ken Murray "Blackouts" party (you could have heard Marie Wilson squealing for blocks when Ken Murray gifted her with a beautiful bracelet for never having owned a performance; Bill Fyfe is sporting a mustache and guinea for his role in "Cocaine," Jeanne Crain's next date is the very social Huntington Hartford III (that's all today).

Home in Indiana At Memorial

By PEGGY DOYLE

As refreshing and relaxing as an afternoon in the country is the Henry Hathaway-directed "Home in Indiana," a nice blend of sentiment and sulky-racing against an eye-easing a year-round series of landscapes as Technicolor has yet discovered.

It chased "Show Business" out of the Keith-Memorial last night and looks to be another "sleeper" like "Laddie Come Home." True, the story is tissue-thin, but it is told with such warmth and taste and acted with such grace any skill!

Boston's Academy Award-winning Walter Brennan and likable young Lon McCallister, whom you'll remember as the shy, kissless soldier of "Stage Door Canteen," head a cast including a delightful youngster, Jeanne Crain, who looks like a sub-deb Paulette Goddard, and Phyllis Haver's provocative, if posturing daughter, June Haver.

Brennan, who never fails to endow his characterizations with a rich flavor and naturalness, is excellent as the disheartened old sulky driver, and McCallister also earns kudos as his wayward nephew, whose love for horses gives them both a new purpose in living.

Charlotte Greenwood, as the lad's forthright, laconic aunt, forswears her skyscraping calisthenics and vocal protechnics for a straight and swell acting chore. Willie Felt, that fine, young Negro actor, impersonates a stableboy with persuasive comedy skill. There is another first-rate characterization by George Reed and, of course, Ward Bond's bluntly honest horse trainer and Charles Dingle's wicked Hoosier horse owner rate honorable mention.

And remember to keep tab on cute Jeanne Crain, who's definitely going places.

"Gildersleeve's Ghost," the co-feature, is the latest in the series starring Harold Peary.

Actual War Films

"Attack! The Battle for New Britain," the War Department's grimly factual account of the first landings on that Pacific island, now showing on the Paramount and Fenway screens, ranks with the best of the Russian war documentaries. It rates right up there on top with "Desert Victory."

There'll be no sales resistance to War Bond buying when you hear the landing orders to the combined U. S. forces who stormed Arave and Cape Gloucester that late December day last year:

"Remember, you can only go forward. You can't go back. There's nothing to go back to. So just grab yourself a piece of beach and start shoving!"

As if you were there, you see men die in the water before Arave, as the naval guns pound the beach and the jungle fighters, straining against mud and underbrush, pull the heavy guns uphill.

And, with enemy dead littering the vast area and burial prayers in English, Latin and Hebrew being intoned over our dead behind the lines, Christmas Day, 1943, ends on New Britain. The main assault has been successful and... "one more day of American living has been bought and paid for..."

Rich, Satin-Smooth Finish for Legs

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

ARE YOU ONE OF THOSE who gazes at the girl in front . . . admiring her lovely legs . . . envying their smoothly sleek and cool-looking appearance . . . wondering if it could be nylons but knowing perfectly well that nylons are practically out of this world . . . and then wondering which make-up to use to help your own legs look like that?

Well . . . stop wondering and listen to good solid reasons why we think this cosmetic stocking is just about "perfect" . . . and will help you achieve that sleek bronze sheerness.

More than two and a half years of research and experimentation have gone into this leg make-up . . . revolutionary in concept . . . and something you've never seen or tried before . . . because it is a fluid cream . . . not a liquid powder. The bottle does not require shaking . . . and no sediment forms at the bottom . . . thereby assuring you an even distribution of color.

Its creamy consistency eliminates the usual untidy and lengthy application of leg make-up. It dries quickly, evenly, without streaking or powdery film . . . and gives the legs a rich, satin-smooth finish. It is rain-resistant . . .

for it will not run nor spot in summer showers . . . and the way the weather is going, this is a paramount advantage.

It is not drying or harmful to the skin in any respect . . . for it is made of the same fine quality ingredients that all the famous preparations of this deluxe house are noted and acclaimed for.

COMES IN TWO SHADES

So why envy lovely summer legs? Two leg-flattering shades . . . light sheer and dark sheer . . . give legs the breath-taking allure of sheerest hose. Now, more than ever . . . when basely is such a problem . . . summertime is the time for gorgeous bare-legs . . . but legs smooth and sleekly covered with bronze attraction.

For the name of this new cosmetic stocking, phone the Beauty Dept., LILBERTY 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Girl Speaks First

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN,

I go to school with a boy I like very much, and I know he likes me. However, he sometimes thinks I am "mad as a hatter," when I do not speak to him as we pass in the halls. The reason I don't speak is because I think it is proper for the boy to say "hello" first. Please tell me if I am right. "BLONDIE"

No, Blondie, you aren't right. In the first place, it is the girl who is given privilege of speaking first. But this really (and naturally) applies to those who do not know each other very well, to a boy and girl who perhaps have only recently met. Why be so coy about greeting this boy? Just be natural, you two, and as you meet in school say "hello" simultaneously, as any two friends should.

Canning Chicken

By MARTHA LEE

A NUMBER OF LETTERS have been received by us asking for information on canning chicken.

The method recommended by the government for canning chicken is the pressure canner. Safe processing in a reasonable time takes a temperature of 150 deg. F.—far higher than boiling. The only way to get his high temperature is to hold can under pressure.

PREPARING CHICKEN

1. Have all equipment washed and clean, as the first step. To prevent darkening of the meat, cut up chicken in glass rather than tin, and use no copper or iron utensils in preparation. Never cook or let chicken stand in galvanized iron tubs or pails.

2—Dress chicken for canning as for cooking, being careful not to break the gall bladder when removing the "innards." Cut into usual serving pieces. Leave skin on or not, as desired. Trim off lumps of fat, keeping only enough for flavor. Too much fat in the jar may cook out onto rubber ring and spoil the seal.

3—Sort chicken into three piles: A. Put together meaty pieces such as breasts, thighs, legs, upper wing joints, to be canned with or without bone. Canned with bone, chicken takes less time to process and has better flavor. B. Put bony pieces such as backs, wings, necks together. These are best if the meat is stripped from the bone, packed and covered with broth before processing. C. Keep giblets separate. Canned with other meat of chicken, they discolor and flavor it. Can livers alone and gizzards and hearts together.

4—Precook meaty pieces, bony pieces and giblets separately. Place into boiling water, lower heat and simmer until raw color is nearly gone from the pieces, about 8 to 10 minutes. Simmer chicken that's to be canned without bone long enough so meat can be cut from bone; then cut off meat and reheat.

PACKING

For packing chicken use pint or quart jars—no larger—and have them hot. If salt is desired, put it in the bottom of each jar, 1/4 level teaspoon to a pint jar; 1 level teaspoon to a quart jar. Pack boiling hot chicken and broth into hot jars and leave 1/2-inch head space at top. Be sure the broth covers the meat. Work out air bubbles with a knife. Use a clean, damp cloth to wipe the rubber ring or sealing edge clean. Any grease or bits of meat will keep the lid from making a tight seal. Adjust jar lid as king requires.

PROCESSING

The jars are now ready to put in pressure canner. Have 2 or 3 inches of boiling water in kettle part so the canner will not boil dry and be damaged. Place hot filled jars on the rack, being careful not to let them touch or tip. The steam must flow around and over each jar.

Count processing time from the moment 15 pounds pressure is reached. If canning is done at an altitude of 2000 feet or more, add one pound of pressure to the 15 pounds for each 2000 feet above sea level.

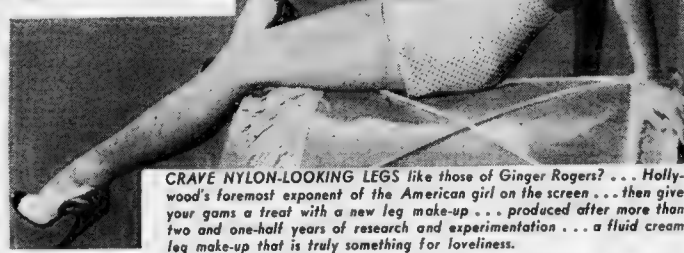

Process chicken with bone 65 minutes for pints, 75 for quarts. Process chicken without bone 85 minutes for pints, 120 for quarts. Giblets are usually put up only in pint jars; process 85 minutes.

When the time is up, slide canner away from heat. Let pressure return to zero on dial-type gauge, wait a minute or two, then slowly open pet cock. Waiting longer may make it hard to get lid off. Then unfasten cover and tilt far side up so steam escapes away from hands and face.

As soon as jars are taken from canner, complete the seal at once, unless self-sealing type of jar has been used.

Store canned chicken in a cool, dry, dark place.

CRAVE NYLON-LOOKING LEGS like those of Ginger Rogers? . . . Hollywood's foremost exponent of the American girl on the screen . . . then give your gams a treat with a new leg make-up . . . produced after more than two and one-half years of research and experimentation . . . a fluid cream leg make-up that is truly something for loveliness.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Tuesday—Yesterday I went out to spend the day in Llewellyn Park, Orange, N. J., with my cousin, Mrs. Henry Parish. I never enter the park gates without recalling that this was the place where Thomas Alva Edison lived so many years. The peace and quiet of this sheltered spot seem well adapted to the creative work he accomplished.

I think it is important for all of us to realize that in the modern world, where we live so much in crowds, with constant noise and activity around us, all human beings need periods of peace and quiet.

IT IS NOT ONLY necessary physically, but even more necessary mentally and spiritually. No creative work, it seems to me, can be accomplished unless people sometimes have quiet and peace around them. It is hard to find such peace in this war period.

One of the great drawbacks of extreme poverty is the necessity for herding people together in limited space. One of the blessings of life in the rural areas is the fact that any child or adult can escape and be alone with nature at a moment's notice.

I NOTICE THAT in Chicago, where the Republicans are proceeding about the business of nominating a candidate for the presidency, there seems to be agitation for unity within the party. That has rarely been necessary in the Republican party in the past, and yet today it seems to be necessary in both political parties. Does this indicate a greater independence of thought, or a need in both parties to re-define the things for which we stand?

Veterans' Friend

Q—My brother, recently killed in action, left two insurance policies, one for my mother and one for my brother, the latter to be divided with myself and two other brothers. Can my brother be made to share his policy with us? B. Y., Salem.

A—The government pays the money to the designated beneficiary or beneficiaries only. What they do with the money is a personal matter.

Q—If the first beneficiary of a soldier dies before she has received all of the installments due on National Service Life Insurance, who gets the remaining installments? A. G., Manchester, N. H.

A—Upon the death of the first beneficiary, after payment has been made of at least one monthly installment, the remaining guaranteed installments shall be paid to the person or persons entitled as beneficiary in the following order: widow, child, parents, brother or sister. Payment will be made in the same amount as to first beneficiary.

Q—If the widow of a deceased soldier remarries, does she lose the remaining installments due her from the National Service Life Insurance payments? B. P., Berlin, N. H.

A—No, the beneficiary continues to receive all installments due her as marriage does not affect payment of National Service Life Insurance.

Q—If the serviceman changes the beneficiary on his National Service Life Insurance, is the new beneficiary so informed? M. D., Hatfield.

A—No, the new beneficiary receives no notification of the change, but it is suggested that you write the Veterans Administration, Washington, D. C., giving the Soldier's Army serial number and requesting information as to whether you are now the designated beneficiary.

The ration table will be printed on Tuesday and Thursday.

For Mother, Daughter

By BETTINA BEDWELL

MOTHER and daughter clothes are now a permanent part of our styles, and just as popular as when they were first invented.

There are many charming editions of these for the seashore, and for other vacation resorts. They are seldom alike, but are always very much in the same spirit.

Some of the best of the shoreline ensembles for mother and her small daughter come in cotton, and seersucker is about the most popular of the cottons for such clothes. One pair from Mary Lewis is sketched. Both the mother's swim suit and the play dress for a tiny girl are made of white seersucker.

Mother's outfit has a camisole type top that leaves the midriff bare and is trimmed with narrow ruffles of the material. The shorts are quite flaring over fitted trunks. The daughter dress has no back, and a mere yak front edged with ruffles, and tied at the back of the neck. The skirt is shirred.

George Holland Boston After Dark

BAD TIMING, OR HOW THE BREAKS come sometimes at the very wrong time: Until one night in March when New York's drama critics and first-night regulars huzzahed the performance of an exotic-appearing young (but veteran) singer named Gertrude Niesen, the talented and attractive Miss Niesen would have entertained no more hope than that of Josephine Doakes of Kalamazoo of being the first choice of such choosy creators as Howard Dietz, Vernon Duke, Rouben Mamoulian and Agnes de Mille for the role of Sadie Thompson in a musicalized version of "Rain."

GERTRUDE THEN overnight became the rave of the critics, and the least of the Dawn Patrol, by her performance in "Follow the Girls" and her singing of a plaintive and corny ballad named "I Wanna Get Married," which became the outstanding novelty song since "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," (which made a real star of Mary Martin).

BUT MISS NIESEN CLICKED with more of a snap than any musical comedy actress of this past intriguing theatrical season . . . Everyone wanted her and at the same time . . . Gertrude and this reporter have been close friends for ten years . . . It is only to dear and understanding friends that one will reveal an ambition so intimate as Miss Niesen's wish to interpret the role to music which Jeanne Eagels created in "Rain" without music . . . But Gertie, taking her banged hair all the way down out of its few rear curls, admitted to us one early morning at the Ritz suite she occupied with her parents, that her heart was set on being "Sadie Thompson" in the musicalized "Rain" which was then in the talked-about stage . . . Came the decision of the Messrs. Mamoulian, Duke and Dietz and Miss De Mille to make an operetta of "Rain" . . . (Mary Pickford also is prominent in the picture as one of the chief financial backers.)

"RAIN" TO MUSIC would be possible only if a singer of approximately the same starring caliber of Jeanne Eagels in the field of dramatics could be hired for the Sadie Thompson role . . . In all New York, only two girls qualified . . . They were Gertrude Niesen and Ethel Meriman . . . Both stars can sing, have innate, perfect timing and can act . . . But Miss Niesen was disqualified at once for two reasons which were (a) a run-of-play contract with Dave Wolper, producer of the smash-hit "Follow the Girls," and (b) loyalty . . . In case anyone is naive enough to imagine that the first reason, i.e., a contract, would be enough to disqualify Gertie from the rivalry for the role, he or she does not know theatrical contracts and their real lack of strength . . . An unscrupulous performer, particularly a singer, can evade a contract in a half dozen ways—albeit slightly unethical.

IN GIVING HER CREDIT, we should consider that Miss Niesen, in spite of Miss Meriman's great talent and box office "name," would have had an excellent chance to get the Sadie Thompson role . . . She is, above other qualities of personality, "salty." She is slow-eyed, which could be an important asset in a competition for the role of "Sadie Thompson."

Ortiz Predicts K. O.; Bolvin Is Confident

By JACK CONWAY

"I AM READY for Larry Bolvin and am confident I shall score a knockout inside of 10 rounds," said Manuel Ortiz, world's bantamweight champion, as he completed his training and waited for the sound of the gong that will send him into action against the New England titleholder at a Calahan A. C. show at National League Park tomorrow night.

"I have a chance to become a national boxing figure tomorrow night by beating Manuel Ortiz and I won't miss," asserted Larry Bolvin as he knocked off work at his training camp at Covington, R. I.

Ortiz and Bolvin have come up to their ring battle in the best of physical condition. Each has trained for three weeks in view of the importance of the contest.

Ortiz is making his first appearance in an eastern ring as a champion. The bout also marks Ortiz' invasion of the featherweight division. It is likely that inability to make the class weight will force the Mexican to vacate his bantamweight crown.

Ortiz has two ring objectives, the winning of the world's featherweight and lightweight championships.

"Ortiz can punch as hard as a lightweight right now," said Manager Tommy Farmer. "He is faster than any featherweight or lightweight in the world, and with his hitting power he should go on to take two more titles. He will have duplicated the feat of Henry Armstrong who won three world's championships."

There will be 2000 seats on the ground, and thousands of others in the grandstand and in the grandstand boxes. It is planned to sell only those grandstand seats and boxes that are on the first base side of the section. This will give the spectators a better view of the action.

With good weather, it is expected that there will be a large sale of tickets at National League Park. The advance sale has gone booming along. The big rush for tickets will take place tomorrow.

Bolvin's Big Opportunity

WHEN BOLVIN faces Ortiz he will be presented with the biggest opportunity of his career. On the short end of the betting, the New England champion can skyrocket into a position of national importance by winning.

Bolvin recently saw Sal Bartolo, who was on the New England All-America team with him, win the N. B. A. featherweight crown from Phil Terranova. Bolvin feels his punch will enable him to do well against Ortiz as Bartolo did with his skill against Terranova.

Willie Pep, who is recognized as world's featherweight champion in New York, will arrive in Boston tomorrow noon. He has signed to meet the winner of the Ortiz-Bolvin bout at National League Park on July 17. On July 7, Pep will clash with Willie Joyce of Indiana in a 10-round bout in Chicago. The weight for the bout will be 134 pounds. Joyce recently outscored Henry Armstrong in a bout held in Chicago.

Pep has been training hard, and he declares he will beat Joyce and then come to Boston where he believes he will conquer the winner of the Ortiz-Bolvin go.

The Disabled Veterans Fund of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser will receive 10 per cent of the gross receipts of the Ortiz-Bolvin bout and also from the Pep bout.

There will not be any complimentary tickets for the show.

Quigley Back Home?

Segura Advances

EVANSTON, Ill. (INS)—Francisco Segura, from the University of Miami, marched into the quarterfinals of the NCAA tennis championships at Northwestern University by defeating Dale Lewis of Utah State, 6-1, 6-0, yesterday.

Grove will draw the pitching assignment for the Pale Hose. Bowman is rated second only to "Tex" Hughson as a starting pitcher for the Croninmen, but hasn't been in action since the club returned home from its last Eastern trip.

On his last time out, Grove scored a 2 to 1 victory over the Cleveland Indians, thanks to a couple of timely singles by Grey Clarke, up from Milwaukee, where he hit .346 last year, who has replaced Tony Cuccinello at third base, since the White Sox were here late in May.

7 IN ROW OVER CHISOX

The Red Sox have chalked up seven straight wins over the Dykesmen. They made a clean sweep of a four game series here last month and then took three in a row at Comiskey Park. However, before leaving home, the White Sox operated on the Indians with such success that they moved into second place and Cleveland dropped into the cellar.

Joe Cronin plans to manage the Red Sox from the bench this afternoon. He has been playing on one good leg for a month or more. Soon after he had put himself in the regular lineup, the "Skipper," who wasn't in condition to do anything more strenuous than punch a hit, developed a Charley horse, which tested the skill of Trainer Win Green as an ironer-out of muscles, before responding to treatment. While favoring his bad leg and a pet bruise on the bottom of his foot, Cronin came up with a bone bruise on the bottom of his foot. Still he refused to quit, despite the fact that it was torture for him to be playing.

For more than two weeks, Cronin has been receiving treatments every morning from a chiroprapist and Win Green, the former treating his feet and the latter his leg, along with devising gadgets, which made it possible for him to remain on active duty.

Now that Lou Finney is available, Cronin will take a much needed rest. Finney has been out of baseball for a year and a half. Instead of returning to the Red Sox in the spring of 1943, Finney elected to remain on his Alabama farm. He rejoined the club two weeks ago in Washington overweight, but willing to step into the line up as soon as an emergency arose.

The Red Sox are tied with the Yankees in third place, four and a half games behind the St. Louis Browns, who open a three-game series today in New York, and a half game in arrears of the White Sox.

If the Red Sox take this series from the White Sox and the Yankees, who have taken on a new lease of life, work on the Browns, first place will be at stake when the Croninmen tackle St. Louis this week-end at Fenway Park.

Caseys Still Fight for Top

Foiled in its first attempt this week to overhaul the Navy Yard in the Park League standings the Casey Club will try again tonight to close in on the leaders and eventually recapture first place.

A victory for the Dorchester Club is imperative if it wants to stay in the running because at the minute it has dropped into a second place tie with the Watertown Arsenal.

Mgr. Dick Casey will have the team at full strength for the all important game. That means that Don Donald will be ready to take his turn on the mound and after a two night rest Bob Fulton can step in and relieve him if the Charlestown shipbuilders start to tee-off on his slants. Fulton allowed only four hits while going down to defeat Monday but one bad inning was his undoing.

Frank Spano, Navy Yard manager, will start his second ace, Red Chappin, and the former Cardinals' chain gang member has been every bit as effective as his teammate Larry Kelley, who beat Caseys earlier in the week.

Great Lakes Diamond Record Still Intact

GREAT LAKES, Ill. June 28 (AP)—A ninth inning rally, good for three runs, kept Great Lakes' baseball team winning streak intact yesterday, the Sailors—former major league players—beating the Chicago Cubs for their 21st consecutive victory.

Paul Erickson had held the sailors to three hits until the ninth, when a walk and three hits, including Bill Baker's two-run single, gave the sailors a 3-2 win and a clean record for the 1944 season.

Name All-Star Squads Next Monday

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK, June 28 (INS)—In past seasons you were playing it safe by picking the American League to beat all over now.

As Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees, who will manage the American Leaguers, was saying you can't tell from one minute to the next who will play for either team in the neutral contest to be staged at Pittsburgh on July 11.

Both squads will be announced next Monday, subject to change without notice, pending possible draft board developments.

Down through the years since the first of these mid-season extravaganzas was played in 1913 all you had to do was put the finger on the American Leaguers and let it go at that.

GOOD PITCHING ASSURED

They have won eight out of the 11 contests. Sometimes they have been thrilling things and often just another ball game, but important because of the fact that this game has matched the two leagues to match their best against each other.

Both leagues will present good pitching. Thus a low-scoring game is in prospect and the team that can get a couple of runs is the one most likely to win, with the National holding an edge on the hitting shown so far.

The American League hurlers undoubtedly will include Tex Hughson of the Red Sox; Dizzy Trout of the Tigers; Harold Newhouser of the Yankees; Hank Borowy of the Yankees, and several others to be chosen at random by McCarthy.

The National League will offer as a mound corps Bucky Walters of the Reds, who has won 12 games to lead both leagues in victories; George Mungler of the Cardinals if he is still around; Rip Sewell of the Pirates and one or two others.

The hurlers will, as usual, go in to work three innings, barring a rampage by the opposition, or the necessity of sending in pinch-hitters.

DOERR CERTAIN STARTER

Bobby Doerr, Red Sox, is an almost certain choice to play part of the game for the American Leaguers, as is Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians, the well-known shortstop. Vern Stephens of the Browns also is a solid choice to do some short-stopping because of his authoritative hitting.

Dixie Walker, the leading hitter in the National for the Brooklyn Dodgers; Stan Musial, of the Cards who won the batting championship last season, and Manager Mel Ott, of the Giants, who is leading the major league home run race, are certain to see outfield duty for the National Leaguers. Martin Marion of the Cardinals and Eddie Miller of the Reds are equally certain to do some short-stopping.

But who is going to win?

BUT YOU'D THINK THE PRICE OF ONE LITTLE RAZOR BLADE WAS HIS LIFE'S BLOOD.
Thanks to RICHARD SHINE CLEVELAND, OHIO.
